

South Central Human Relations Center

Information for Minors

If you are a minor, you have the right to request that data about you be kept from your parents. This request should be in writing, explaining both the reasons for withholding data from your parents and that you understand the consequences of doing so. In a few cases, the law permits us to withhold data from your parents without a request from you, if the data concerns the treatment of drug abuse or venereal disease or if you are married. If you have questions about this, ask the staff person who works with you.